HERMANN
Meteorologist, Weather Bureau

day by Rear Admiral J. K. Latimer, judge advocate general of the navy, that Mr. Denby had told him that he had initiated the transfer of the navy reserves to the interior department after investigating the question and consulting with various experts.

President Coolidge again devoted much of his time to the oil lease matter, giving attention both to the various phases of the evidence adduced by the senate committee and the question of the qualification of the special counsel he has selected to prosecute the case.

The executive had an early morning meeting with Chairman Lenroot and Senators Lodge, of Massachusetts, and Curtis, of Arkansas, the republican leaders, and later called in democratic senators for the first time, talking over the whole subject with Senators Robinson, of Missouri, and the minority leader, and Walsh, of Montana, who has had the dominant part in the oil inquiry.

Late in the day the president took a long walk with Assistant Secretary Roosevelt, during which the oil matter was discussed in a general way. Mr. Roosevelt said the executive had asked him a number of questions about phases of the inquiry.

A new development in the situation today was the issuing of a subpoena for the appearance tomorrow of E. L. Doherty before the senate committee. The subpoena was sent out by Chairman Lenroot after Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri, had demanded in writing that the committee should subpoena Doherty.

Under a resolution introduced in the house by Representative Fish, republican, New York, Harry F. Sinclair, now in France, would be requested through official channels to return here and "explain to congress and the American public the $25,000 loan to ex-Secretary Fall."

by the senate committee examined Mr. Fall during the day in his sick room at the home of J. W. Zevely, personal counsel to Mr. Sinclair, and is expected to report to the committee tomorrow as to whether the former secretary can appear for questioning.

The senate vote on the Walsh resolution was the result of an unanimous consent agreement today after two more hours of fervid debate. The measure will be transmitted to the house tomorrow and Representative Longworth, of Ohio, the republican leader, said tonight he was prepared to ask for an unanimous consent agreement for limited debate and a final vote during the day.

Mr. Longworth declared that in the main the resolution was acceptable, although he thought some of the language might be modified, particularly that relating to the want of authority and law for the making of the leases. In view of the senate vote against such modification, however, it will not be regarded as likely that amendments would be pressed.

Made Last Stand. With adoption of the measure by the house, President Coolidge will have formal authority from congress to take the action he has taken—appointment of special counsel to prosecute such suits, civil and criminal, as the facts might warrant.

There was a last-minute effort in the senate to amend the Walsh resolution so as to direct the president to seize the leased reserves in Wyoming and California, but the proposal, by Senator Howell, republican, Nebraska, was rejected without a vote. Two votes then followed on the Walsh resolution, the first, 90 to 0, to accept it as a substitute for the original Caraway resolution, and the second to adopt the resolution on its own merits.

The six senators absent on the first roll call were: Colt, Rhode Island; McCormick, Illinois; Reed, Pennsylvania; Weller, Maryland, and Willis, Ohio, republicans, and Stephens, democrat, Mississippi. On the second roll call Senator Warren, republican, Wyoming, also was absent.

Resignation Demanded. Debate on the Robinson resolution followed. Senators Copeland, of New York; Fletcher, of Florida, and Heflin, of Alabama, all democrats, demanded the resignation of Mr. Denby, arguing that he had been negligent in permitting control of the naval reserves to be transferred from his department. Senator Fletcher declared Mr. Denby's "principles and ideals" were those of former Interior Secretary Ballinger.

Defending the naval secretary, Chairman Hale, of the naval committee, asserted that because with the legal advice of his department, Mr. Denby signed certain oil leases and "because two years later before the public lands committee he showed ignorance, an honorable man is to be broken and an honorable name trailed in the dust."

Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, suggested that the disposition of the resolution might do more harm than good and might result in getting Mr. Denby out of office "when he should be impeached and tried for malfeasance."

Senate action now, he added, might disqualify the senate to sit as a jury in any impeachment proceedings.

Longworth Denies Move. Taking cognizance of suggestions as to impeachment, Representative Longworth declared he had heard nothing of such a movement in the house, where impeachment proceedings would have to originate, and added that he was certain that if started it would find scant support.

Closing senate debate until tomorrow, Senator Moore, republican, New Hampshire, declared the senate had done everything it could do in the oil lease matter when it took it out of the "partisan, ferid, misanthropic atmosphere of this chamber and sent it to the pure, chilling air of judicial chambers."

"But here the man-bunt continues," he said. "The pack is in full cry. We have the sick chamber invaded by a jazz band, ghouls dancing in the cemetery, and partisan snipers making a rifle pit out of the grave of Warren Harding."

While the orators were in full flight, some administration senators sought agreement for modification of the resolution so as to eliminate the name of Secretary Denby and make it more general in its terms. It was indicated that an amendment to this end would be offered, probably tomorrow.

Statements issued both at the white house and by Senator Robinson after the conference between President Coolidge and the democratic senators indicated that the talk of nearly an hour covered a wide range.

Text of Resolution. The Walsh oil lease annulment resolution, as adopted by the senate, follows: "Whereas, it appears from evidence taken by the committee on public lands and surveys of the United States senate that certain lease of naval reserve No. 3 in the state of Wyoming, bearing date April 7, 1922, made in form by the government of the United States through Albert B. Fall, secretary of the interior, and Edwin Denby, secretary of the navy, as lessor, to the Mammoth Oil company, as lessee, and that certain contract between the government of the United States and the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport company, dated April 25, 1922, signed by Edward C. Finney, acting secretary of the interior, and Edwin Denby, secretary of the navy, as lessor, to the Pan-American Petroleum company, as lessee, were executed under circumstances indicating fraud and corruption; and

"Whereas, the said leases and contract were entered into without authority on the part of the officers purporting to act in the execution of the same for the United States and in violation of the laws of congress; and

"In defiance of settled policy. "Whereas, such leases and contract were made in defiance of the settled policy of the government and heretofore through three successive administrations, to maintain in the ground a great reserve supply of oil for the use of the navy in any emergency threatening the national security; and

"Resolved, By the senate and house of representatives of the United States of America, in congress assembled, that the said leases and contract are against the public interest and that the lands embraced therein should be recovered and held for the purpose to which they were dedicated; and

"Resolved further, That the president of the United States be, and he is hereby is, authorized and directed immediately to cause suit to be instituted and prosecuted for the annulment and cancellation of the said leases and contract and all contracts incidental or supplemental thereto, to join the other contractors of oil from the said reserves under said leases or from the territory covered by the same, to secure any further appropriate individual suit, and to prosecute such other actions or proceedings, civil and criminal, as may be warranted by the facts in relation to the making of the said leases and contract."

"And the president is further authorized and directed to appoint by and with the advice and consent of the senate, special counsel who shall have charge and control of the prosecution of such litigation, anything in the statutes touching the powers of the attorney general or department of justice to the contrary notwithstanding."

RECALL DOHENY TO SENATE STAND. Washington, January 31.—A subpoena will be issued immediately requiring E. L. Doherty to appear before the senate committee tomorrow, Chairman Lenroot announced today when Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri, demanded in writing that the committee should subpoena Doherty.

Reed said he understood Mr. Doherty, who has been here awaiting to appear before the committee, was about to leave Washington for New York, and he wanted the committee, by direct and open questions, to inquire from Mr. Doherty, "whether he has ever at any time, either by himself direct, through his agents, or through his corporations, given or contributed any money to any person at the time holding a public office and whether he has in any of these ways contributed money to the cause of the oil lease."

"I take it in view of the challenge that has been made by Senator Fall yesterday that Secretary Fall is being made a participant in the oil lease," said Mr. Doherty, "and I cannot but feel that the jurisdiction of the committee without being subjected to searching examination along the lines I have indicated."

GREGORY HOLDS JOB IN OIL CASE. Austin, Texas, January 31.—Thomas Gregory, former attorney general of the United States, who has been appointed by President Coolidge as special prosecutor in the Teapot Dome case, has been representing the Vulcan Oil Company of New York in its suit against the Texas Pacific Oil company, now pending in the federal court at Fort Worth, it became known here today.

The case involves leases in the Ranger field, sixty miles west of Fort Worth. Mr. Gregory, before leaving Austin last night said he believed his connection with this company could have no bearing on his appointment as special prosecutor in the Teapot Dome controversy. Mr. Gregory said he came to Texas some weeks ago to take part in the Fort Worth case.

Save Naval Oil Is Primary Need Asserts Daniels. Raleigh, N. C., January 31.—The primary object of the present investigation at Washington of the leasing of naval oil reserves should be to have these reserves restored to the navy, declared Josephus Daniels, former secretary of the navy, in a statement issued here tonight. Mr. Daniels asserted that those guilty of wrong doing should be punished if conviction followed investigation, but that this was secondary to preserving for the navy in the ground an emergency supply of oil.

It was because of his belief that annulment of the leases was of first importance, stated Mr. Daniels, that he recommended to President Coolidge on last Monday that Judge Crawford Biggs, of Raleigh, be consulted with reference to the prosecution of the oil cases for the government. Mr. Daniels, in his telegram to the president, called attention to the services rendered by Judge Biggs in the handling of oil lease matters during the Wilson administration, and asserted that his assistance should prove of value to the government in the present investigation.

Judge Biggs was called to Washington Wednesday night by President Coolidge.

Following is the statement in part issued by Mr. Daniels tonight: "The biggest thing about all the naval oil lease matters is to restore the naval oil reserves to the navy. The punishment of those guilty of wrong doing should follow conviction. To all who wish to serve the navy and naval preparedness, however, the big thing is to put an end to draining the oil in these reserves and preserve an underground supply for an emergency. Everything else is secondary."

Hook and Line All Fishermen Can Use Now. Closed season against fishing in Georgia, except with hook and line, begins today, February 1, and State Fish and Game Warden Peter S. Twitty has mapped out a campaign for rigid enforcement of this law.

Mr. Twitty announced Thursday that he will immediately appoint about 2,000 additional deputy wardens, selecting them from reliable citizens who live either upon the streams or who own property abutting on them. He has written to all the county game wardens asking each one to name 10 or more individuals suitable for this work.

Each of these deputies will be impressed with the importance of the work he is asked to do and he believed that by this means a check can be placed against violation of the fish laws by such means as netting, trapping and other wholesale fish catching methods.

Dynamiting of streams is against the law at all times, and Mr. Twitty is also hopeful that these additional deputies will help in his department's constant warfare against this crime of all crimes in the fish world.

The only fish in the state which it is legal to catch by other means than hook and line after February 1, by the way are shad, the closed season for shad being from April 15 to July 1, instead of from February 1 to July 1. In a few counties, by action of the grand juries, hook and line fishing is the only kind allowed at any time of the year.

FARM PROGRAM SQUAD TO VISIT QUITMAN. Quitman, Ga., January 31.—(Special.)—Announcement is made by County Agent Stratford that a squad No. 7 of the county agricultural development program bureau will arrive in Quitman February 13 to give a demonstration at the county house at the o'clock that afternoon. The squad comes to Quitman from Thomasville, where a similar meeting will be held in the morning and goes the following day to docta and other points.

VINSON ATTACKS MOTIVE IN LEASES

Washington, January 31.—(Special.)—Representative Carl Vinson, of Georgia, led the attack Thursday against the lease of government oil lands to private interests in the investigation being conducted by the house naval affairs committee, which heard Rear Admiral J. L. Latimer, judge advocate general of the navy, who testified as to the navy's part in the leases to the Doherty and Sinclair interests. Vinson is ranking democrat on the committee.

Latimer admitted, after much questioning, that Secretary Denby initiated the transfer of the leasing of government oil lands from the navy to the interior department. It had been generally intimated up to this time that the transfer came at the instance of former Secretary of the Interior Fall.

Representative Britten, of Illinois, republican, attempted to show by his line of questioning Latimer and Rear Admiral Gregory, superintendent of docks and yards, that the contracts were of benefit to the government. This brought on a spirited clash between Britten and Vinson.

Vinson questioned the possible advantage to the government in a contract out of which E. L. Doherty had said he expected to make $100,000,000. "How can these leases be for the benefit of the United States and at the same time for the benefit of Sinclair and Doherty of a hundred million dollars a piece?" Vinson asked Latimer.

"That's speculation," replied the witness. "Sinclair and Doherty testified they repaid Vinson."

"I can't say as to that. It might be to the benefit of the government and at the same time to the benefit of the lessees."

Asked if he had passed on the legality of the leases, Admiral Latimer said he had not. He explained he had merely rendered an opinion as to whether or not the law permitted the navy to exchange royalty oil from these leases in exchange for storage facilities.

The gentleman (meaning Vinson) can't produce any evidence to show that Doherty and Sinclair have said they would make $100,000,000 out of these leases," Representative Britten said.

MELLON PLAN?

MELLON PLAN?

THE LITERARY DIGEST, with the absolute impartiality which is now universally recognized as its unvarying policy, is mailing individual secret ballots to nearly 15 million men and women voters throughout the United States, that the desires and opinions of the people on this great issue may be known beyond question.

EVERY VOTE IS THE FREE, UNINFLUENCED, SECRET VERDICT OF THE VOTER, UNKNOWN TO ANYONE BUT HIMSELF OR HERSELF

THE DEMAND FOR TAX REDUCTION is the paramount issue before the country to-day. The only question in dispute is how to secure the reduction. Many plans have been proposed by various political groups or leaders, but attention has become focused upon one plan—the Mellon Plan.

The Mellon Plan reduces the taxes on all incomes in varying degrees; it provides that an earned income (salary, wages, professional services, etc.) shall not be taxed as highly as an income from stocks, bonds, etc. The so-called nuisance taxes, such as the moving-picture admission tax, the telephone tax and the telegraph tax, also are eliminated.

This measure, however, is not without strong opposition. An important fault with the plan, according to such leaders as William G. McAdoo, ex-Secretary of the Treasury, and Commander John R. Quinn of The American Legion, is that it excludes the soldiers' bonus, which they strongly believe should be paid, and which they claim can be paid without preventing some tax reduction.

On the other hand Secretary Mellon says it will be impossible to reduce taxes in this generation if we pay a bonus. President Coolidge also disapproves of a bonus in fact and principle, and has given unqualified support to the Mellon Plan.

DO YOU FAVOR THE MELLON PLAN FOR TAX REDUCTION OR NOT? Mark your Ballot and support your views.

ALL CLASSES OF VOTERS in all States and all communities in the Nation are being polled with complete impartiality. They include business men, merchants, farmers, manufacturers, railroad employees, bankers, clerks, builders, contractors, superintendents, managers, carpenters, plasterers, plumbers, painters, mechanics, printers, miners, steel-workers, workers in every trade and branch of industry, both union and non-union, professional men and women of all classes, including lawyers, doctors, clergymen, authors, actors, newspaper men, dentists, engineers, educators, architects, musicians, etc., in short, all parties and all the classes of men and women who make up the voting population in all parts of the country.

NO PROPAGANDA OF ANY KIND is connected with this great National Poll of the American people. The Literary Digest is always strictly non-partizan and impartial on all controversial questions. It records the facts and the opinions of all political parties and all classes. That is why it has come to be regarded by millions of Americans as the one representative and indispensable periodical record of all phases of American life.

Miss Alice' Gets What She Seeks; Fired From Job

Former Oklahoma Congresswoman Courtied Discharge From U. S. Service.

Muskogee, Okla., January 31.—Miss Alice Robertson, former congresswoman from Oklahoma, today received notice from the veterans' bureau of her dismissal as welfare director of the Oklahoma soldiers' memorial hospital here.

Since her application for an indefinite leave of absence was denied by the bureau, "Miss Alice" has been active in political meetings despite warnings of federal officials that it was in violation of civil service rules. Hospital attaches said this was responsible for her discharge.

"Miss Alice" refused to discuss the matter except to say: "I did not resign. I never would have resigned. I wanted to make them fire me."

She asserted that she will go to Oklahoma City to become president of the Women's Coolidge-for-President club in Oklahoma. Declaring that she is not worried because her new job pays no salary, she said: "God will take care of me. I have always done right."

FATHER STORMS, GROOM IS SILENT

to usurp the place of "God bless you, my children."

Nothing daunted, as they say in the story books, the young couple declare, "We have our own lives to live." Young Ham looks for work; his wife works in the job she has always had.

And the young Mrs. Ham is matching, protest for protest, the objections of Ham's parents. "My father is up in the air," she says. "I did not want my husband to marry me; he was not forced into it. We wanted to keep our marriage a secret, but now it's out and we are going ahead to live our lives as we wish."

So young Ham is looking for work and Mrs. Ham is working on.

DEFENSE TO CHARGE FRAUD IN DIVORCE

cluded with "the very best of good wishes," and the final letter heard by the jury, dated March 21, 1921, ended with "Sweetheart mine, remember that I love you always, and that to me you are the most precious thing in ten thousand worlds."

Will Attack Divorce.

It is expected the defense will claim that frequent references of Mrs. de Bouchel in her letters to her stay in Reno clearly indicated she intended remaining there only the time required by law, and then a short time thereafter in order to "cinch" the legality of her domicile there. These references were stressed by Attorney Thomson.

When counsel for the plaintiff closed its case at 12:30 o'clock, the first move of the defense came in Attorney Thomson's announcement that he will attack the divorce decree on the grounds that proper domicile had not been established by Mrs. de Bouchel in Nevada. He tendered certified copies of all the proceedings in the divorce case. The attack on the divorce was foreseen Wednesday when Mr. Candler's attorneys filed an amendment to his answer in which he set forth that the engagement was unenforceable because Mrs. de Bouchel was the wife of Roquet at the time she promised to wed the defendant.

Attorney Thomson then began the reading of the letters and this consumed the remainder of the session.

Mr. Candler's attorneys indicated that should the attack on the legality of the Reno decree fail, they would not be recognized in Georgia, inasmuch as it was secured in grounds of non-support, which would be insufficient in this state.

calling you to the 'city of cities,' and may you hear the call while I am still here," she said in her first message.

This was followed by a letter from Florida, in which she suggested that Palm Beach "would be an ideal place for a winter honeymoon for anyone contemplating an early matrimonial excursion."

Calls Him "Lothario."

Next was New Year's greeting, concluding with the information that she expected to stop off in Atlanta en route to Washington.

"Of course I expect your undivided attention, you 'Gay Lothario!'" she said.

The next letter bore a foreign postmark, and admonished him to "try to be a real good boy, think of me often. It was not dated.

On November 23, 1920, she wrote him from New York, thanking him for an amethyst ring she had received. It seemed to be of affection and love, she said.

In December she wrote of difficulties with her husband, and told of his alleged desertion for $2,000, and of her desire to get a divorce. She asked Mr. Candler's advice concerning payment of the sum. Later she told of preparations for her trip to Reno and of the requirement that she first live in Reno for six months before she could get a decree.

Letters From Reno.

Then followed several letters from Reno, in which she complained of her prison-like existence, the divorce law forbidding her absence from the county one single day.

In one letter she urged him to resign from business.

"I want you all to myself. Besides, you do not need any more wealth. In a year from now we will be married. I shall insist upon your retiring completely, so be prepared to 'obey me.'"

Final letters of Mr. Candler to Mrs. de Bouchel were presented Thursday morning by Attorney Albert Howell, Jr., of plaintiff's counsel.

Defends Character.

When Attorney Howell concluded the reading of the letters, the defense, introduced a group of depositions from New Orleans citizens regarding Mrs. de Bouchel's reputation and character in that city.

The first deposition was from Albert T. Roquet, a practicing physician, who said he was a brother of Adolph Roquet, former husband of the plaintiff.

"I have always known her as a perfect lady," he said. "I have received her in my house as such, and continue to do so."

"Doctor, you know what the reputation of Mrs. de Bouchel is in this community for chastity?"

"Yes, it has always been good."

Mrs. Margaret Hunt Brisbane, the widow of a physician, whom she said was a nephew of Arthur Brisbane, the journalist, was the next witness. She said she had lived in New Orleans for 28 years, and had known Mrs. de Bouchel since 1917.

"I have always known her to be a perfect lady, and when I say that, that says everything. A perfect lady is everything that is just and proper," she asserted.

Says Character is Good.

The deposition was followed by that of Mrs. Albert T. Roquet, the wife of the first witness. She testified to an acquaintance with Mrs. de Bouchel, which had begun 24 years ago. She testified to her good character.

Mrs. Charles H. Sproule, the widow of a former manufacturer of men's clothing, testified that she had known Mrs. de Bouchel for more than 25 years, and had been brought into intimate personal and social contact with her, and that her reputation was good.

Mrs. Sproule's daughter, Mrs. M. P. McNeely, followed with testimony relating to the prominence of Mrs. de Bouchel in Louisiana society and her high and unquestioned reputation.

She told of accompanying Mrs. de Bouchel to Atlanta in September, 1919, when Mrs. de Bouchel was chaperone general at the Confederate reunion, during which event the meeting between Mrs. de Bouchel and Mr. Candler occurred. Owing to the crowded hotel conditions she occupied a cot in Mrs. de Bouchel's room at the Piedmont, she said.

Following the reunion, Mrs. McNeely testified, she left on Friday night and Mrs. de Bouchel remained in Atlanta.

Miss Rhea Bachemin swore she had known Mrs. de Bouchel intimately since 1916.

"I traveled with her during the reunion in 1916," she testified.

"To what place?"

"Birmingham."

"Were you just a casual visitor there?"

Queried on Open House.

"No, I was a maid of honor." During the Atlanta reunion, she said, she was sponsor for the Sons of Veterans. Asked to testify as to whether or not Mrs. de Bouchel kept "open house" at her official headquarters in the Piedmont, she said she would come in and go out—they came to pay their respects to the ladies, and were generally entertained; she was the chaperon general, and everybody connected with her; they would do nothing except just come in and go out."

Mrs. J. Bachemin, mother of Miss Bachemin, testified that she had known Mrs. de Bouchel since her debut, and that she knew her to be "a lady of character beyond reproach."

Fire is Mentioned.

Mrs. M. P. McNeely and Mrs. Sproule were recalled and questioned concerning the burning of Mrs. de Bouchel's home in 1915. After the fire, their depositions showed, Mrs. de Bouchel moved to the residence of Mrs. Sproule, and sometime later, to a Miss Norton's boarding house on St. Charles avenue. She lived with her husband at the boarding house, the testimony showed, until Mrs. de Bouchel's trip to Europe, the time of which was later established as being in 1921.

The next witness was Miss Florence Huberwald. She said she had known Mrs. de Bouchel for six years, and had been associated with her in club work and in the suffragist movement.

She was asked if she knew what class of people were taken in as boarders at Miss Norton's boarding house. "I think it is considered a first class boarding house. I never knew anybody to live there who was not considered absolutely respectable."

"Do you know what the general reputation of Mrs. de Bouchel is for chastity?"

Would Have Injured Suffrage.

"Well, I consider it good. The women's suffrage party could not afford to have anyone connected with it who was not of good reputation."

"Do you know how long it has been since Mrs. de Bouchel kept house in the city of New Orleans?"

"I could not tell you that. When I knew her, she was living at the Norton and Griffin boarding house."

Mrs. Horatio Willie, testified that Mrs. de Bouchel was in the habit of associating with the very best class of people in New Orleans, and that her reputation for chastity was good.

Dr. Dowling on Stand.

The next witness was Dr. Oscar Dowling, president of the Louisiana state board of health, and an eye, ear, nose and throat specialist of New Orleans. He said he had known the plaintiff for about 15 years.

"I have known her in a social way," he said. "I have met her at parties, at dinners, at dinners, and at the Mardi Gras balls."

"Is it not a fact that she usually played as chauffeur by Mrs. de Bouchel, testified through a deposition, that he was in her employ for nine and a half years. He gave his residence as 35 John the Baptist parish, about 35 miles from New Orleans.

Asked About Visits.

He was asked to tell of visits to him by persons seeking information concerning Mrs. de Bouchel.

He said he was visited in August, 1922, by persons who inquired as to her associations with men. He said he declined to talk to them.

He said one of the men discussed insurance with him before he inquired about his employer. The visitor offered him money to furnish the desired information, he said, but was turned down. So annoying was the frequency of the visits by persons seeking information concerning Mrs. de Bouchel he left home, he said.

Mrs. Charles Granger, of New Orleans, president of the U. D. C. chapter in that city, was the next witness. She said she had known Mrs. de Bouchel since she was seven or eight years old. She told of her intimate associations with Mrs. de Bouchel at U. D. C. conventions and on a western tour they made together.

With respect to her reputation in this community as chaste woman, is it good or bad?"

"I am certain that it is good."

Dr. Joseph A. Danna, New Orleans physician, for several years the house surgeon at the Charity hospital in that city, gave the next testimony. He said he had known Mrs. de Bouchel since about 1912, and had never heard anyone question her chastity.

Reno Depositions.

Depositions taken in Reno, Nev., were next read by Attorney Howell.

Fred J. Longchamps, an architect of Reno and formerly head of the Nevada state department of architecture, testified that he and his wife met Mrs. de Bouchel early in 1922.

Longchamps said that during his acquaintance with the plaintiff she had never mentioned being married. He said she appeared interested in purchasing a bungalow in the suburbs of Reno, but the deal had not been closed.

Mrs. M. S. Goodwin, who occupied an apartment in the same building with Mrs. de Bouchel in the early part of 1922, testified that at one time she was visited by a young man who gave the name of Cochran and who said he wanted some information concerning Mrs. de Bouchel, and particularly whether or not Mrs. de Bouchel ever received men callers. Mr. Goodwin said she told Cochran that she knew nothing about Mrs. de Bouchel "except that she was a fine, moral woman."

Knew Nothing Detrimental.

H. J. Goss, a Reno hotel man, stated that Mrs. de Bouchel stopped at his hotel frequently from 1920 to 1922. He said that he was approached by a man named Cochran who claimed to represent the Candler interests in quest of information concerning Mrs. de Bouchel's relations with men. Goss said he informed Cochran he knew nothing detrimental to her character.

Henry Ritter, owner of Bow's mansion, a dining and bathing resort in the suburbs of Reno, declared in a deposition that he knew both Mrs. de Bouchel and Mr. Candler, and that they had visited his place with another couple early in 1922. He could not recall the day.

Later, he said, two young men called to see him and sought information concerning her associations with men. They seemed disappointed, he said, when he informed them he had only seen her in company with Mr. Candler.

William Rawson, formerly assistant manager of the Riverside hotel at Reno, stated that a young man asked him for information concerning Mrs. de Bouchel. He answered that he "knew Mrs. de Bouchel only as a very good woman."

any answer he would give would be merely guesswork, and finally answered that Mr. Candler is thought to be worth several million dollars. Asked to confine himself to figures as nearly as possible, he stated "at least $5,000,000." He said he had never seen Mr. Candler's financial statements.

Second Day Opens.

The second day of the trial opened at 10 o'clock Thursday morning. Deputy Marshals Tom Wallace, John W. Jones, W. E. Haney and Ralph Johnson, permitted the entrance of spectators until the United States courtroom was filled. Mrs. de Bouchel arrived with her attorneys and a group of friends. Mr. Candler reached the courtroom in company with Asa G. Powell, Jr., and Judge Arthur G. Powell, and took a seat near his attorneys.

The plaintiff at once concluded the presentation of the series of letters written by Mr. Candler to Mrs. de Bouchel. Six letters were read, making a total of 19. Among them was one of September 15, 1922, in which Mr. Candler is alleged to have broken the engagement.

The letter of September 15, bearing no salutation, was in explanation a telegram received by Mrs. de Bouchel, in which he informed her that "circumstances" kept him from leaving Reno, where they had arranged to be married. In the letter he said that he had received information from Reno, where they had arranged to be married. In the letter he said that he had received information from Reno, where they had arranged to be married.

A letter of September 30, bearing no salutation, went into further details concerning the reports which had been made as to her conduct.

Discussed Wedding Plans.

A previous letter, dated September 8, discussed final wedding plans, and stated that the Candler servants "are doing well and appear to be anxious to serve you."

Sale of his stock in the Central Bank & Trust company was disclosed to Mrs. de Bouchel in a letter of September 8. "I did not accomplish what I desired, but received in notes—no cash—about all it is worth," he wrote. "Its disposal appoints the main purpose of my life. I wanted to hold it for my children's benefit, but could not."

SCHOOL BOARD PLANS SLASHES IN BUDGET

Another effort to cut down school expenses will be made by the new finance and building committee of the board of education in special session Saturday morning, it was announced Thursday by W. W. Gaines, former president of the board, who was appointed chairman of the committee by President John T. Hancock Tuesday.

Formalities for proceeding with work on all wings of the first unit of the new Girls' High school building, authorized by the board Tuesday, also will be arranged Saturday, it was stated.

Members of the committee were not hopeful Thursday over the school financial outlook, although a member of the board not on the committee was said to be preparing estimates which would cut the school budget $200,000. The estimated budget at present is $2,700,000, not counting nearly $400,000 deficit from 1922 and $350,000 for Girls' High school. Total revenues of the department are estimated at less than $2,500,000.

No More Gray Hair --Says Science

Wonderful Clean, Colorless Liquid Restores Original Color

Results in a Week

Science again has scored a triumph in the discovery of a very remarkable liquid known as Kolor-Bak. If you are gray, just apply this liquid to the hair and scalp and your hair will soon take on the actual color it had in the past. Not a trace of grayness will remain.

Kolor-Bak comes in the form of a clean, colorless liquid, containing properties which quickly restore the lost color to the hair and give it renewed vigor. And note that the one preparation is for all colors of hair. No special solution required for each color—no samples of hair required.

You will find also that with Kolor-Bak the hair has the same shade throughout. It does not appear streaked, faded or "dyed."

Every scientist, every physician, knows that gray hair is hair that has ceased to receive its normal supply of coloring matter or pigment from certain tiny cells (called follicles or papillae) in the scalp, because these cells have become inactive from illness, shock of some kind, scalp disease, dandruff, infection, neglect of the hair or lack of circulation, etc. But no matter what the cause of the grayness, it is simply amazing to see how it disappears when Kolor-Bak is used. It is a proved substitute for the natural pigmentation.

Mayor Expected To Veto Hikes In City Salaries

Mayor Walter A. Sims today will sign the water rate increases, but will veto the 1924 finance sheet because of 150 salary increases provided, it was predicted by those in close touch with the mayor, after he had heard several delegations of citizens Thursday afternoon.

The mayor's attitude is, it was stated, that he is opposed to the principle of raising salaries when the city is in so critical a financial condition that it must raise its water rates.

"More money unquestionably is needed to expand service to meet the tremendous increase in the size of the city," the mayor was quoted as saying, "but I do not think it justifiable to increase salaries in the face of such conditions."

Leading Doctors of Nation Tell of Medical Progress

Purposes and achievements of the American College of Surgery in its efforts to create better health conditions and perfect medical science, formed the chief topic of addresses at the initial public meeting held last night as a feature of the sectional clinical congress of the organization which convened for a two-day session Thursday morning. A capacity audience—composed of citizen physicians, nurses and visiting medical men—attended the meeting in Wesley Memorial church.

Pointing out the modern health problems confronting humanity today, Dr. Allan D. Craig, of Chicago, declared that the responsibility of improving these conditions rested largely upon the individual. He outlined the purpose of the organization of surgeons, of which he is a director, stating that it was toward affording the sick every necessity and convenience possible by the application of science.

3,000,000 Sick Daily.

Three million people of the United States are sick every day, Dr. Craig declared, and one-fourth of this number are suffering from illnesses which could easily have been prevented. He declared that the average number of deaths daily is 11,000,000.

The meeting was opened by an invocation by Rev. Marvin Williams, pastor of the church. Dr. W. S. Goldsmith, presiding, followed with a short introductory speech.

The congress was formally opened Thursday morning at 9 o'clock in the headquarters at 32 Howard street. Dr. G. P. Huguley, of Atlanta, delivering the opening address. Dr. Huguley was followed by a number of other prominent medical men, who are attending the convention.

Dr. M. T. McEachern, of Chicago, followed Dr. Craig, in an interesting outline of "hospital betterment" in America, and the part the American College of Surgery is playing. With the aid of lantern slides he explained the requirements necessary for a hospital to be under the approval of the organization.

Hospitals Visited.

Dr. McEachern pointed out the importance of modern and scientific operation of hospitals, and declared that the college is sending out each day armies of investigators whose duties are to visit hospitals all over the country, inspect them thoroughly, file reports with the association's headquarters, and then institute movements to make necessary improvements.

"This service does not cost the hospitals or its patrons one cent," Dr. McEachern declared. "The American College of Surgery looks to that, and is daily increasing the number of improved hospitals."

The development and use of the X-ray was discussed by Dr. J. T. Case, of Battle Creek, Mich., who also used lantern slides. Dr. Case declared the X-ray was the "right arm of surgery," and in his talk recounted many of the wonderful achievements in surgery it has made possible.

Medical Research.

Dr. F. C. Mann, of Rochester, Minn., spoke upon the progress of medical research, outlining the growth of the science of medicine from its beginning to the "definite, clean-cut profession of today."

"How You Can Help Your Hospital" was the subject of the concluding talk by Robert Jolly, of Houston, Texas.

Friday will be devoted to addresses and discussions to be held in the congress headquarters on Howard street. In the afternoon a luncheon will be tendered the visitors followed by a trip to Stone Mountain.

Lockwood Reverts to War In Attack on Democrats

Republican Chairman Replies to Hull in Statement Published in Party Organ.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Washington, January 31.—Replying to the recent statement of Democratic National Chairman Hull on the naval oil disclosures, George B. Lockwood, secretary of the republican national committee, upheld the course of President Coolidge in a statement published today in The National Republican.

At the same time Mr. Lockwood attacked the record of the Wilson administration in its conduct of the war and reviewed at length the disclosures before congressional committees that investigated war expenditures.

"Chairman Hull," said the statement, "has issued a pronouncement in which he attempts to give the color of partisan politics to the disclosures in the Fall case."

"Secretary Fall is a republican. It is true, he is a former member of the Harding administration. He was a member of the platform committee of the last democratic national convention; he made a speech in the convention; his name was placed before the convention for the vice presidential nomination by the California delegation."

Large Contributor.

"Mr. Doherty was the largest contributor to the democratic national campaign fund in 1916; he gave generously to it in 1920. It was at Mr. Doherty's instance that the late Secretary of Interior Lane, who had passed upon oil leases in which Mr. Doherty was interested under the Wilson administration, retired to accept employment with Mr. Doherty at a salary of $35,000 a year."

"Other important officials of the Wilson administration took employment with Mr. Doherty at fabulous salaries."

"The less said about partisan politics in this connection perhaps, the better; it is not a matter of partisan politics but of personal and official conduct. Mr. Doherty is a man who he held responsible unless it condones the crime and fails to prosecute the offenders. Upon this point the republican administration has made itself clear; it will go to the bottom of the matter and prosecute anyone found criminally liable."

Assails Wilson.

Mr. Lockwood continued that when the "shameful facts as to the weakness of our war management, under which wholesale crookedness ran rampant, became known," President Wilson attempted to drive out of the democratic party those who protested.

"Contrast this with the action of President Coolidge," he said, "who immediately the facts came to light, announced his purpose to prosecute every wrongdoing vigorously with the able counsel it is possible for the government to employ, representing both of the great political parties."

Chairman Hull having invited attention, Mr. Lockwood said, to the "unblemished record of honest and faithful service" under democratic rule, it would be in order to recite "just a few of the high spots of the last Wilson administration."

Some of those listed were as follows:

"Bought 41,000,000 pairs of shoes for 2,500,000 soldiers.

"Bought 149,456,611 bread cans, or 42 for every man under arms.

"Paid out $184,425,506 on claims presented after the war, many of them without a contract.

"Spent $200,000,000 for coke ovens that produced no coke; $35,000,000 on picnic acid plants that produced no acid; $127,661,000 on terminals and docks at which no ship ever tied up; $115,000,000 on poison gas plants that furnished no gas; $40,000,000 on ships which took no part in winning the war."

"Collection Impossible."

"Eleven billion dollars was loaned to foreign nations without evidence of indebtedness, making collections impossible except by negotiation."

"Purchased 945,000 saddles, 1,000,000 sets of double harness, 1,148,000 horse covers, 2,850,000 halters for the 391,000 horses and mules used in the army; purchased 195,000 copper-tipped branding irons to brand the government's 391,000 horses and mules; bought $21,000,000 of ambulance harness when our ambulances were motorized.

"Spent $206,632,920 for sixteen national army cantonments, built by the cost-plus system, which could have been built for $628,101,399; spent $1,200,000,000 for camps and cantonments in which the conservatively estimated waste and graft was $400,000,000; $500,000,000 to build a powder plant at Nitro, W. Va., which never produced a pound of powder; $800,000,000 in constructing and operating a powder plant at Nashville, Tenn., which produced no powder that could be used during the war; $116,194,974 on nitrate plants at Sheffield, Ala., Muscle Shoals, Ala., Toledo, Ohio, and Cincinnati, Ohio, which did not produce a pound of nitrates during the war.

"Spent to the date of the armistice $1,051,000,000 for aircraft construction without producing a fighting plane; spent $1,091,000,000 for artillery with the results that 133 American-made guns were on the firing line at the date of the armistice."

Miss Cox Dances At Legion Party Given Tonight

A dance by Miss Myrtle Cox, celebrated Atlanta artist, will be the highlight of the entertainment to be given tonight by Argonne Post No. 1, American Legion, at the clubrooms, 14-12 Marietta street. The meeting is the first of a series planned for the year, and members of the Legion auxiliary, as well as all ex-service men, are invited.

In addition to the dance by Miss Cox, an elaborate program has been arranged, including numbers by the Twenty-second Infantry orchestra, which is stationed at Fort McPherson; music by the Georgia Railway and Power company quartet, directed by Bruce Scroed; and selections by Ernest Durrett, Ray Hutchens and J. L. Nixon. Refreshments will be served.

WILSON IS SUFFERING DIGESTIVE DISORDER

Washington, January 31.—Woodrow Wilson, weakened by a digestive disturbance of the past few days, remained about the greater part of today upon the advice of his physicians. Although the stomach ailment was described as having been less acute than before, the doctors said he was "somewhat prostrated by his illness."

After a visit to the former president tonight Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, who has attended him since he was stricken on his western speaking tour in 1919, made this statement:

"Mr. Wilson's digestive disturbance has been less acute today, but he is somewhat prostrated by the illness of the past few days and has not been allowed to be up since the earlier part of the day."

COUPLE SUES ATHENS FOR ROUGH STREETS

Athens, Ga., January 31.—(Special.)—Damages aggregating $1,046.61 are sought by Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Howell, well-known residents of this city in separate suits filed in the city court against the city of Athens. What Some of Georgia's Most Useful Men Think of Georgia's Best Business

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT
Atlanta, January 23, 1924.

For a number of years Georgians have benefited through the activities of the Georgia Sunday School Association. Its promotion of improved teaching methods in the Sunday Schools of nearly every denomination, its organization of State and County Sunday School Conventions, engendering enthusiasm and increased efficiency, and lately its development of the Daily Vacation Bible Schools, constitute a real and valuable service to the State, which every Georgian, who loves our young people, should appreciate.

Clifford Walker
Governor.

Sunday school is a friendly place, a good place, a beneficial place. It will help you to attend Sunday School — and surely all children should go to Sunday school.

There are various kinds of Sunday schools. They have different ways but the same end in view. The need for an organization which will further co-operation is manifest.

The Georgia Sunday School Association is the desired organization and surely we should see to it that the means are provided to carry on its work.

Daniel C. Barrow
Chancellor University of Georgia.

It has been a pleasure for several years past to help in some slight degree the work of the Georgia Sunday School Association. It is aiding our commonwealth in many ways—some that are seen and some that are not visible, and deserves the sympathy and help of our good citizens.

M. L. Brittain
President Georgia Tech.

I do not know of any greater blessing which can come to our State than to have the goals of the Georgia Sunday School Association fully achieved. It offers a systematic program for bringing the young people under the best of spiritual influences.

President Agnes Scott College.

I endorse wholeheartedly the efforts of the Georgia Sunday School Association in organizing new schools, raising the standard of the same, enlarging the program of religious education and creating sentiment along religious lines. These are great objectives, and my hope is to see them succeed.

Mayor of City of Atlanta.

Bloody Avalanche Will Sweep Earth, Says Bible Student

C. A. Wise, vice president of the International Bible Students' association, will address local Bible students and their friends at the Bible Students' hall, 10 1/2 West Alabama street, at 7:30 o'clock Sunday night on the subject: "After Armageddon, What Then?"

Mr. Wise states he will call attention to the prophecies of the scriptures showing that the nations of the earth are rapidly approaching a great cataclysm.

"Pictured from the prophetic words of the Lord," he says, "I see a mighty upheaval, a veritable avalanche of blood and fire, starting in Russia and sweeping over the earth."

From the point of view of design the Edgeworth pattern is one of purely Colonial character, while the delightful simplicity of its form proclaims its classic origin.

The ornamentation of water leaf and bead which form the outer moulding, is rendered after Colonial examples and the Acanthus leaf at the lower part of the handle gives a pleasing effect and harmonizes well with the general design.

SIX RAILROADS GRANT PAY HIKES

Chicago, January 31.—Wage increases, granted voluntarily or by agreement with employees, have been announced by six southeastern railroads, the United States Railroad Labor Board was informed by Charles Neill, manager of the bureau of information of southeastern railroads.

The Chesapeake & Ohio, by agreement with the United Workers of America, representing laborers at Newport News, Va., posted an increase of three cents an hour for stokers, freight handlers, coopers, truckers and laborers. The increase established a rate of 38 cents an hour for laborers and 43 cents an hour for the other positions.

The Charleston & Western Carolina granted an increase of $4.80 a month for section foremen, establishing a new rate of $115 a month.

The Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis increased the minimum for clerical employees from $50 to $55 a month.

Positions paying $55.01 to $116.01 were given an increase of $3 per month; those paying $116.01 to $133, an increase of $1. The following scale was established: After six months' experience, $60 per month; after 12, $62; after 24, $84.

Harris Presses For Early Action On Mail Measure

Washington, January 31.—Early action by the senate will be asked by Senator Harris, of Georgia, on his bill to help in the distribution of farm products by lowering the parcel post rates for shipments on the route, and giving a commission to the rural carrier for handling the business. The senate postoffice committee Thursday unanimously agreed to favorably report the bill calling for the experimental service of fifty routes over the country for one year and a special report to congress at the next session of congress. Senator George, a member of the committee, made the favorable report to the senate.

Senator Harris believes that small lots of eggs, butter and other farm products are going to waste now because the producer cannot afford to take the time and expense of carrying small shipments to town, and the consumer is paying higher prices because of the waste in not getting these products. He has received approval of the idea from many rural carriers and farmers, and the experiment will be watched with interest. The house must consider the bill after it passes the senate.

Democratic Women Asked To Denounce Mexico Arms Sale

Cleveland, January 31.—Democratic women attending their "school of democracy" here were asked today to make formal protest against the sale of arms to the federal government of Mexico by the United States, and to approve entrance of the United States into the world court. Resolutions embodying such declarations were submitted to the gathering today and will be acted upon tomorrow.

In addition, they will have before them a proposal that they extend to Senator Walsh, of Montana, their thanks for his "brave and wonderful service" in the "exposure of corruption" in the Teapot Dome investigation.

All of the resolutions submitted today were greeted with generous applause and it was believed that all would be approved.

The women also sent a telegram to former President Wilson expressing hope for improved health and congratulating him upon his accomplishments.

The league of nations was discussed tonight by former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker.

He was chairman of the board of trustees of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers' Mutual Life and Accident Insurance company, and was general chairman of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, division No. 207. New Pastor of Second Baptist Church Stresses Need of Constructive Work

"Less controversy over points of doctrine and more constructive work would be of immense benefit to the church," said Dr. Carter Helm Jones, of Philadelphia, new pastor of the Second Baptist church, who arrived in Atlanta Thursday to take up his new duties here.

A large delegation from the congregation was at Brookwood station to welcome him. At its head was Dr. M. Ashby Jones, pastor of the Ponce de Leon Baptist church, noted pulpit orator and brother to the new pastor.

Dr. Carter Helm Jones came direct from Philadelphia, where for the past six years, he served as pastor of the First Baptist church, one of the oldest churches of the denomination in the United States.

Dr. Jones, while declaring that he was not an extremist, deplored the controversy between modernists and fundamentalists which is stirring the church in eastern states. He promised that he would make known his doctrinal beliefs in a series of sermons.

"There is plenty of work to do apart from controversial matters. I intend to further the good work which has been started at the church to which I have been called."

Dr. Jones will preach his first sermon next Sunday morning, while at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon he will address city meetings of the Business Women's league. A number of receptions have been planned for the new minister, the first to be given by Miss Sally E. Brown at her home, 1190 Peachtree street.

The new pastor has taken up his residence at the Georgian Terrace hotel for the time being.

Stewart, professor secondary education, University of Georgia; "Modification of Latin Courses in the High School," by Peyton Jacob, professor education, Mercer university; "The Junior College, Its Function and Its Standards," by R. C. Mizell, Sparks college; "Sparks College."

The afternoon session includes discussions on: "How the Georgia College May Aid in Promoting a State-Wide Educational Program," by N. H. Ballard, state superintendent of public instruction; report of committee on the junior college and advanced college; and to approve entrance of the United States into the world court.

The present officers are: Rufus W. Weaver, president, Mercer university; J. F. Sellers, vice president, Oglethorpe university; and W. D. Hooper, secretary-treasurer, University of Georgia.

ROAD WASTES SCORED BY FLOYD GRAND JURY

Rome, Ga., January 31.—(Special.)—Floyd county did not get full value for the $720,000 received from her 1921 bond issue, according to the grand jury which adjourned today after making presentations which criticized many features of the county's execution of its road building plan.

The remaining $30,000 bond money only $81,483, the grand jury presentations set out, and it is proposed to spend $50,000 on one road project. The remaining $30,000 will not finish the work, it is set out.

Special attention is called to the fact that $42,751 has been spent for machinery and repairs to machinery over and above what was spent of the bond money for these same items.

In spite of this, the presentations show there is no one who knows what was bought, how much of it has been paid for, or where this equipment is.

The presentations show that almost $14,000 has been spent for gasoline, but there is nothing like a record to show who used this gasoline or for what purpose.

In reporting conditions at the "county home" the grand jury made mention of the way in which Superintendent J. T. Braden is doing his work and sets out that he is an ideal man for the place and recommends that his salary be raised. Mr. Braden was for months the object of an ouster campaign, waged by County Commissioners C. T. Bradford and W. T. Autrey, both of whom recently resigned.

M. C. A. Work of remodeling the quarters of the First National bank, which is to be done on Monday, necessitated the removal. The bank has supplied the organization with a home without charge for two years.

Jury Wars on Gaming.

Rome, Ga., January 31.—(Special.)—Benjamin C. Yancey, recorder of the city of Rome, proprietor of the Third Avenue hotel, and one of the best-known business men of this city, has been indicted by the grand jury for operating a gaming house. The charge is based upon the operation in the Third Avenue hotel of a slot machine. The indictment is one of several of similar nature returned by the grand jury in an effort to put an end to gambling in the city.

ROAD ASKS RIGHT TO STOP PASSENGER CARRYING SERVICE

Application was filed Thursday with the state public service commission by the Gainesville and North-western railroad for permission to discontinue entirely its passenger carrying service. The road claims it is suffering a loss of a thousand dollars a month on passenger traffic. A motor car system for carrying mails is suggested.

The road runs from Gainesville to Robertsonville, a distance of 37 miles. The commission set February 20 as the hearing date.

DICK JESTER BACK ON SUMTER GANG AFTER FREEDOM

Americus, Ga., January 31.—(Special.)—Dick Jester, from Fulton county, is again in the Sumter county gang with secure chains about his legs. Jester, who was figured in several escapes, was taken in Macon Wednesday. He was convicted on charges of stealing an automobile when he came to Sumter, but he says he has reformed.

"I had a chance to take several while I was free," he is said to have told County Warden John B. Aspley, "but I've quit that game."

Georgia Yam Curing Company

ATLANTA, GEORGIA

This Company was chartered June 11, 1923. Its purposes are threefold:

- 1st. To make money for its stockholders.
- 2nd. To furnish another cash crop to the farmers of Georgia.
- 3rd. To purchase at fair prices, then store and cure the famous sweet potatoes, so easily and abundantly produced in Georgia, and sell them in the late winter and early spring to the markets of the country which at that time are almost bare of vegetables.

The Company owns the patent rights for Georgia of the Forced Air System of curing sweet potatoes and other vegetables. This process completely removes sweet potatoes from an extremely perishable class of merchandise and makes of them a staple commodity like Irish potatoes, and permits us to market them as the demand is made and therefore at profitable prices.

The Company also owns five large farms in different parts of the state on which it proposes to raise the potato plants that it will sell to farmers that contract to raise potatoes for our curing plants. The Company also expects to raise for market at least one hundred thousand bushels of potatoes each year on its own farms.

Gay & Keith, of Gay, Ga., and Mr. James W. Legg, of Marietta, Ga., owned and operated Forced Air plants before we purchased the patents and began plans to operate throughout Georgia. These gentlemen are not interested in the Georgia Yam Curing Company in any way, but have kindly agreed to give to those who might be interested with us their opinions of this system and their experience in operating a Forced Air System plant. We have letters from these gentlemen stating that they sold their potatoes as high as $1.75 per bushel last season, and this year Mr. Gay has sold quite a few cars at as high as $2.40 per bushel crate. This Company has sold four cars in the last two weeks from its Pelham, Ga., plant at $2.35 per crate, f.o.b. cars at the plant, net cash. Two cars went to Minneapolis, one to St. Paul, Minnesota, and one to Indianapolis, Indiana.

We offer for sale at par, $100.00 per share, a limited amount of our capital stock. This stock is preferred as to dividends and assets over all the stock issued for patent rights, copyrights, farm lands, and for all expenses of advertising and promoting the Company up to date of its incorporation.

From the sale of this stock we propose to build six Forced Air curing and storage houses, each of 20,000 bushel capacity, which with the four houses we now have will give us capacity sufficient to cure and store and market 200,000 bushels from the 1924 crop.

The price which we sold potatoes for in January, namely $2.35 per bushel crate, f.o.b. curing house, showed a profit of approximately $1.50 per bushel. We do not contemplate such high prices, but we can sell potatoes after curing and storing them at $1.50 per bushel and net 50c per bushel profit. We wish to build up a great volume of business so that farmers, country merchants, bankers, and all Georgia will profit along with our stockholders.

A descriptive pamphlet will be mailed upon request. We invite you to join us in as small or as large a way as you may feel inclined.

"I thank you for it. You understand my reference to suit. The Atlanta paper sent a wire to Reno, stating that attorney from Atlanta had gone there to either file a suit or present one. I mentioned the incident to indicate to you the mendacity of that paper. My troubles here will not cease till my life has ended."

"Have unpacked all your goods. Beautiful furniture, only one bowl on cup broken. Every piece is being rubbed and made to look as if it were new. Tomorrow I will get your letter written after my last Friday's letter of suggestion to which you made wire reply of confirmation. After I receive your letter I will close up every detail of my leaving and being away several weeks. I am far from being happy, if it were not for my dear old sister, who approves everything I do, and who loves me. She will cordially, affectionately welcome you as her sister. Her love for me is unbounded."

"Will write you more at length tomorrow. I pray you be cheerful, be charitable, above all put confidence in right and love me as worthy of your absolute confidence."

Happy as doves, oh—the sorrow that his escape had occasioned me! She says she is going to do her best to fill the place of mother and wife. He promises to match such conduct. "It almost killed me to have to wire you this morning. Circumstances such impossible for me to leave Saturday. Wiring full information. I am in state of great perplexity."

"Information has just been brought to me from sources entitled to belief that there are two men living in Atlanta who claim to have in time gone by visited you by your invitation at night in your room at a hotel in this city. To marry with these reports in force, could not in any case be right or fair to either of us. Even though they be untrue, your reception in Atlanta could be so painfully affected thereby as to make me unwilling to bring you here and have you subjected to plights by people you will have to meet. To carry you elsewhere would not avoid this treatment. The situation is horrible and difficult to handle. I must and will be kind and fair to you. We must and will not do that which when done can not be undone. No man should marry any lady if he has doubts that such marriage could not be happy for both parties. It is far better to realize that fact before than after marriage. I know you so well and esteem you so highly that I will hear from you. I am sure you will agree that we should not, in justice to you and myself, go further now. I hope you will promptly reply to this in the same spirit as it is written. Nothing has ever so disheartened me as this.

"(There was no salutation.)"

"As promised I am doing my best to get the actual truth of the statements made to me that I had been made to in my letter of September 15, 1922. I have been told by a citizen of Atlanta that while you were in the city, you were in the room of the hotel, when he gave you his telephone number, later you telephoned him and he told you that you were in his room. He decided saying that the hotel was very carefully policed, that he did not visit ladies who were in hotels. You assured him it would be perfectly safe that he visit you. He did not go. You gave him your home telephone number. He promised to call you when in New Orleans. He promised to do so. When in New Orleans he telephoned to the number, but was informed you were not then in New Orleans."

"I got the above statement by agreeing not to divulge his name until such time as he will consent. I am pursuing the investigation so privately that no publicity will result."

"ASA G. Candler."

A letter, purporting to have been written by Mrs. de Bouchel to Mr. Candler on September 28, two days prior to Mr. Candler's last letter, was next received. The letter bore no signature. The stationery carried the De Bouchel coat of arms with the inscription, "Deo Juvante Florent Lilia." The letter follows:

"A Chummy Conspiracy."

"September 28."

"My attorney informs me that yesterday you refused to divulge the names of the men in Atlanta who you say claim to have visited me there in my rooms for improper purposes. Do you expect me to let this hideous slander go unpunished? I'll publish it to the whole world and we will see if the world is as credulous as you seem to be, and as you expect me to be. If there are any such men, and I certainly do not believe there are, who make such statements, they have been paid to do it and they shall go to the penitentiary along with those who hired them. This is a chummy conspiracy that imposes on nobody but you. Why did it come up in Atlanta right at the time, in fact just in time to stop you from coming to Reno for our wedding on the twentieth?"

"Why does it come up in Atlanta at all, except that it is distant from my home and friends, and where it will be harder for me to meet perjury and punish hired assassins?"

"My attorney stated you said the man was a traveling salesman. That is a respectable class. I will call on the traveling salesman of the south to protect woman. An innocent, defenseless woman from a dog, a cur, who is a tool of my enemy. You must divulge the name of this person. Unless you do I'll act on the assumption that there is no such person, and that you have been too willing to be imposed on. Besides, you are a Christian gentleman. As a Christian gentleman can you treat a helpless woman this way? You know that I have not a single male relative in the world!"

"Asked Only Justice."

"I am not appealing to you as my promised husband and natural pro- tector, but just as a man. Are you willing to see me treated this way in your city, in your home, where you are all powerful? Oh—how can you think for a minute that I ought to accept this insult in silence and humbly steal away in some remote place to hide the shame of a woman cast aside because she is not supposed to be a good woman? I'll never do it! I'll entreat you for my friendship, in the name of the feelings of affection and attachment that have existed between us to the very end of this matter. You will find it false! It is a wicked, vicious attempt to destroy an innocent woman. If you will not comply with this request, I will come to Atlanta at the risk of public misconception, against my every inclination. All I ask is plain justice."

"Sincerely,"

"ONEZIMA DE BOUCHEL."

A letter addressed to "Mrs. O. D. Rogers (under which name Mrs. de Bouchel registered), Hotel Patton, Chattanooga, Tenn.," under date of October 3, 1922, was read, as follows:

"Your letter of yesterday does not seem to refer to the one I wrote you September 30. Your quotation was not taken from it. I wrote exactly what the man said you had done, giving you the place and time. I could only get that by promising not to divulge his name for the present."

"ASA G. Candler."

Last Letter October 5.

Another letter addressed to "Mrs. O. D. Rogers, Hotel Patton, Chattanooga," under date of October 5, 1922, follows:

"Referring to yours of yesterday and to mine of September 16, it is evident that nothing is being done towards relieving the difficulties that caused me to break my engagement with you for September 20. Whether there is truth in the statements made of you or not—we should not marry. I am sure you concede this. Whatever course you deem to be wise—your interest considered as primarily to pursue, the earlier you begin action the sooner will you and I be relieved from a condition of suspense that is next to unbearable to us both."

"Sincerely,"

"ASA G. Candler."

Attorney Howell said that the letter of October 5 ended the correspondence between Mr. Candler and Mrs. de Bouchel.

MELLON SCHEDULE WILL GO TO FLOOR

fight, also have declared they will not support the Mellon rates.

Mr. Longworth said it was unlikely that a republican conference would be called to discuss the tax bill before it reached the house, pointing out that members of the party could not be bound by a majority vote in such a conference to support the measure.

Other members of the steering committee who met today with the republicans of the ways and means committee during their all-day discussion of the income schedules included Speaker Gillett and Representatives Graham of Illinois; Sinnott, of Oregon; Darrow, of Pennsylvania; and Sanders, of Indiana.

Changes Are Few.

Acceptance of the Mellon income rates will place the treasury bill before the house with only the following changes of importance: rejection of the proposed joint tax on community property; limitation of the reductions for earned incomes; restriction of the repeal of taxes on theater admissions; modification of the proposed board of tax appeals, and special reductions in the income schedules included.

The proposal to reduce taxes payable this year, which was approved yesterday by republicans of the committee on ways and means, was supported today by Secretary Mellon, who said the estimated loss to the government of about $300,000,000 from a flat reduction of 25 per cent on all income taxes of 1923 could be met. The plan, he said, was feasible and practicable.

The democratic also moved in this direction today when Representative Garner introduced a joint resolution proposing to make a reduction in the 1923 taxes on the basis of rates put forward in the democratic plan, which would reduce the normal income taxes to 2 per cent on incomes below $5,000 and $8,000 and 6 per cent above that amount. It also would increase the exemption for unmarried persons from $1,000 to $2,000 and of married persons from $2,500 to $3,000.

Wants Prompt Action.

Mr. Garner insisted that the joint resolution could be acted upon before March 15, when the first instalments on income taxes are due, and thus would save about 2,000,000 persons making returns this year. Under the Green plan the reduction is made a part of the revenue bill with the provision that if approved after March 15, refunds could be made on over payments.

Mr. Green objected on the floor today to Mr. Garner's request for immediate consideration of the joint resolution. Later he issued a statement in which he declared the proposal was simply a desperate move for political purposes. Mr. Green further stated that the plan was unworkable from an administrative standpoint as the tax returns had already gone out and many had been paid. He said the scheme were adopted it would entail an entire new set of tax return forms. Moreover, he said, the treasury could not stand the estimated loss of $300,000,000 in revenues which the plan would entail.

Keep at Work on Details.

With adoption of the rate schedules, republican members of the committee will continue in private session the remainder of the week. Mr. Green said, to work out details. It was likely, he said, that the full committee would be called in by next Tuesday when the rates will be approved.

Women who lead a domestic life seem to listen to every call of duty excepting the supreme one that tells them to guard their health. As long as they can drag themselves around women continue to work. Necessity to keep on their feet all day when over-tired, or sitting in cramped positions day in and day out often brings ailments from which women suffer. For fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been strengthening women and overcoming such ailments. Sickness and pain vanish under its influence and thousands of women have been benefited by it.—(adv.)

Their reception has proved so cordial in past years that Atlanta has come to be one of the favorite cities in the world to the artists themselves. Vocational Classes At Woman's Club.

Mrs. T. G. Delph, chairman of the vocational classes of the Atlanta Woman's club, announces Friday as the final registration day for the new classes in millinery, interior decoration, basketry, dressmaking and costume designing. There still remain a few vacancies in all of the classes. And the course of ten lessons for $2 is open to every one whether a club member or not.

Of particular interest is the fact that Miss Mary Olive Whitehead will be in charge of the dressmaking class. Miss Whitehead has proven herself an artist of unusual merit, and it is with greatest pleasure that Mrs. Delph announces her as the instructor of interior decoration, basketry, dressmaking and costume designing.

Mrs. Delph, assisted by an efficient committee, will be at the clubhouse on Friday afternoon from 2 o'clock to 5 o'clock, and anyone interested will please be on hand at that time, as this is positively the final day of registration for the classes to begin Monday, February 4.

Woman's Club Plans Dance.

The members of the banquet hall insurance group of the Atlanta Woman's club, of which Mrs. Capers Andrews is chairman, are planning a dance at the club Friday, February 8, in the banquet hall of the club.

For the accommodation of those preferring to play bridge, Mrs. Paul Turner, chairman of arrangements for the dance, reports there will be a few tables arranged in the palm room and sun parlor leading to the banquet hall, and reservations can be made through Mrs. E. L. Caton, chairman of tickets, at Hemlock 2742-J.

The chaperons for the dance will be Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Goodman, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Carlyle, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Poole, Mr. and Mrs. Newton Wing, Mr. and Mrs. Howard McCutcheon, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Sharpe, Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Thrown, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. White, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Hugueley, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Erwin, Mr. and Mrs. Cleve Webb, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. John Hornaday, Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Moore, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Mount, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. P. Treadwell, Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Ayer, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Williamson, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hazzard, Mr. and Mrs. George Forester, Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Turman and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Ivy.

A seven-piece jazz orchestra will furnish the music for the dancing.

Jane Hedden Hat Pattern

No. 2290.

To make this smart semi-dressy hat, a conventional design of grapes in suede or broadcloth is appliqued on a soft drape of silk or straw cloth.

The work is marvelously simple for the effect produced. Pattern and directions are easily followed.

An embroidered towel is more work and a crochet pattern more complicated than the making of this hat.

MATERIAL REQUIRED.

Seven-eighths yard 36-inch material, 1 soft crown, 1-4 yard 36-inch material for applique, embroidery threads, 1 lining.

HAT PATTERN ORDER.

This order will bring you pattern and working instructions for making hat illustrated above. Fill in name and address, inclose 25 cents in stamps, postal note or coin—address: Hat Pattern Department Atlanta Constitution.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Tarnished Lace.

If the lace or gold braid is badly tarnished, sprinkle with fuller's earth and then rub with a stiff nail brush.

A Good Winter Food.

Oatmeal contains more fat than any other cereal and should therefore be included in the breakfast menu of the hard worker on these wintry mornings.

Just a Suspicion of Onion.

A bottle of onion salt is a splendid article to have on hand when just a slight flavor of onion is desired. A few sturdy shakes and you have the required seasoning, both of onion and salt.

Safety First.

Try the stain remover on an underneath section of the hem of the frock before taking a chance on the stain itself. Then you will know definitely whether the color will come out along with the spots.

Winter Cleaning.

Wood alcohol is an efficient agent for window cleaning during cold weather. It will not freeze on the window as water does. Dampen a cloth with alcohol and apply it to the window. Shine with a dry cloth.

Beautiful Tea Compliments Guest.

Miss Eleanor Hagood, of Charleston, S. C., who is receiving wide social attention, was the honor guest at a large tea at which her hostess, Miss Arabelle Dudley, entertained Thursday at her home on Lombardy way.

The lovely home was decorated with many varieties of floral plants and early spring flowers. In the center of the exquisitely appointed tea table was a silver bowl filled with lavender sweetpeas and white narcissi, surrounded by silver candlesticks holding lavender unshaded tapers and ornaments of bonbons.

Receiving the guests were: Miss Dudley, Miss Hagood and Mrs. S. S. Dudley.

Miss Caroline Howard and Miss Frances Lucille Howard served punch. Miss Effie Daniel, Miss Isabelle Howard, Miss Emma Nixon and Mrs. Boykin Pennington assisted in entertaining.

Miss Hagood was gowned in white lace trimmed with French flowers and completing her costume was a corsage of red roses and valley lilies.

Miss Dudley wore a model of gold lace trimmed with bands of purple and her corsage was of Columbia roses and valley lilies.

Mrs. Dudley's gown was of black gorgette beaded in cut steel. She wore a corsage of pink roses and swainsons.

HEARTS AFIRE

BY MAY CHRISTIE

The Brilliant Novelist of Modern Society

Installment 35. THE CHALLENGE.

What was Bert doing in the spinney at this hour of the morning? Odd that Prudence's curiosity should get the better of the pulsing emotion she had experienced at sight of him!

Was he coming towards her? Had he seen her? And what was his mission underneath the tall elm tree? Why that particular elm? There were others further back from the spinney... indeed, there were other trees all round that spot.

He stood for a moment, hesitant, then, looking down at his suit, started to flick it with his right hand, which he had just freed from a gardening glove.

Prudence crouched lower behind her screen, so that he might not see her. Let him find her of his own accord. She wouldn't help him. He had behaved... oh, yes, he had!... abominably!

From this angle she could see his face. Now he was taking off his hat, and wiping his forehead. His face was red and hot, and his hair disturbed from its usual button-smoothness.

Queer how she had fancied him an Adonis of good looks! Why, surely his chin was weak! It lacked the square line, the forcefulness, of Peter Armstrong's determined jaw.

And why was he looking round as though he were afraid? She remembered noticing once or twice in the past that Bert's eyes often had an odd look in them... furtive... suspicious.

Janet Mercer had called them "shifty." That, of course, was going too far. It was simply because Bert and Janet had no liking for each other.

Still, his behavior did seem queer. Just now.

What would he say, if he came over here, and found her? Ought she rise, and show herself? If not, would he accuse her of spying on him?

Traymore solved all these questions by suddenly swinging round again in the direction of the denser woods, and making off.

This movement coincided with the clatter of a horse's hoofs upon the road. Someone was approaching, and Bert betook himself away in an opposite direction.

The riders were only a couple of farmers' boys. The spell, however, was broken for Prudence, and she came out of her hiding place at once.

But curiosity still urged her to discover Traymore's mission at the bottom of the elm tree.

Indeed, the whole thing was most mysterious. Had he a hidden secret in his life? If it weren't for the fact that his air had been so furtive, his ear attuned to approaching sounds as he stood waiting, listening, his work evidently accomplished, Prudence might have thought he'd been merely digging primrose roots, or amusing himself with turning over last year's withered leaves.

Afraid that he might not be far away, however, she slipped out to the open road and proceeded on her delayed journey to the library.

How doubly awkward it would be, were she to return now to the wood to investigate the mystery, then raise her head from the bottom of the tree and maybe find Bert's eyes upon her, furiously indignant at her inquisitiveness, and at the same time suspecting that he himself was the magnet that had drawn her back!

No! That would not do, at all. She could come back later.

Or maybe Bert himself would solve the riddle for her. (Queer how the former agony of pain had gone! Queer how she could look on Bert's face with—if not yet equanimity—a measure of composure, and a freedom from the keen suffering she had recently endured.)

As she walked the highway, head upheld, eyes brave to face the future, her thoughts were back on Peter Armstrong, and their interview in the laboratory.

How kindly he had been! Somehow, he radiated sympathy and understanding. And—strangest thing of all—he had seemed at all delighted over the advent of Virginia Dale! If he had once loved Virginia—and Prudence hitherto had thought he had—could he have been so indifferent in his manner towards her now?

It wasn't because she didn't like Virginia that Prudence was glad over this new knowledge. It was because her own opinion, her own feeling toward the young inventor—it had changed, of late.

"If he had loved Virginia, he would still be suffering. I don't want him to suffer." So she explained the matter to herself, little realizing how inadequate that explanation was, and not knowing the real state of her feelings in the least.

And again—"If Virginia had been the woman he had loved—and there was some woman in his past—then I could never think quite the same of him, or of his judgment—because she's so—so obvious!"

Prudence reached her destination, got her books on sweet-pea growing, then walked up the main street of the little country town, gazing in the shop-windows at the new spring fashions. Exhilarating to feel interest in the styles again! If falling in love with Bert had been intoxicating, what comfort there was in falling out of love that had only brought such pain into her life!

"I'm through with romance, and I'm going to be happy, minus love." Daringly, imprudently, she flung the challenge to fate, little reckoning that fate has ways and means of making the too-daring pay for such a speech!

Tomorrow: "Heaven Help Peter Armstrong!" (Copyright 1924 for The Constitution.)

SPRING CARESSES COUNTRY WEARY OF COLD BLASTS

More of this luscious springtime weather more Thursday and, according to the promise of the official weather forecast, more due Friday.

"Fair Thursday night and Friday... no changes in temperature," read the prognostication sent out yesterday from the office of C. F. Von Herrmann. And, to add to the promise, the forecast concludes that "Conditions are favorable for continued fair weather in Georgia."

Temperatures all over the country are moderate for this time of the year. Cloudy weather and light precipitation are reported at a few northern points, while there is a moderate atmospheric disturbance centralized over Iowa.

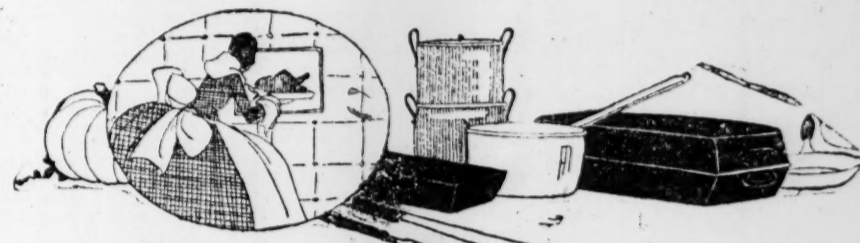

Atmospheric pressure is high over the Gulf and Plateau regions which means that the balmy breezes of the last three days will probably continue to caress Atlantans and tempt youth, with blood tingling to the impersonation of spring, to leave its overcoat at home and dream of baseball, camping trips, and the old swimming hole back of the meadow.

The Great Moment

BY ELINOR GLYN

"It is just too divine to dance, Paul," she whispered. "I never want to go back to England and dull old home."

The young American was a perfect dancer, like most of his race, and the vast difference, Nadine found in Europe, when his turn came, brought her sharply back to earth again. He had no idea of rhythm, and went round in measured time.

"Oh, it is no use," she said at last, exasperated, and stopped abruptly in the middle of the floor. Her betrothed was surprised, but to be kind.

"Of course you cannot expect to know how to dance, Nadine, as this is only your first time; but do not be discouraged, let my dear child; after a little practice you will get into it and learn to keep time."

Then she went into one of her fits of laughter, to Eustace's annoyed dismay. "Why, it is you who have not a notion of that dancing means," she panted. "One of us will go round with an old broom."

Mr. Pelham drew himself up stiffly. An altercation would be in deplorable taste, but such impoliteness could not be permitted to pass unremarked.

"I am sorry you find me like an old broom; let me go and sit under the new one can again sweep you off your feet."

Oh, how like her father he looked when he said that! The same sarcastic freezing tone; between the two of them, everything which gave her any pleasure in life was always spoilt.

And with a petulant shrug she took refuge at Sir Edward's side. "Why are you not dancing, my dear?" he asked, feeling that some jar had occurred.

"Because Eustace thinks I cannot dance, and I think he cannot—so we have decided to sit down."

Fortunately at that moment Sadie Bronson came up, and the two girls changed partners again.

And while Sir Edward watched his daughter his thoughts were troubled. She and Eustace did not seem to agree over one single thing.

When later on Nadine looked out of her window on the fourteenth floor of the Plaza, for the first time in her life she began to realize that there were new forces awakening in her nature, and that she was not accepting everything dumbly.

The ache for life and love and gaiety was positive and definite. Not just a nameless pain, which made her unhappy. She knew not why. The weird effect of the staid summer sky, and the tall buildings cut sharply against it, appealed to her.

These strange high towers of a new enchanted land, shooting up to express themselves above their fellows, gave her comfort, they seemed to be in sympathy with her new aspirations. The unusual noises coming from the city and the docks, strange whistles from the sirens of ships—seemed the cries of prisoners, who, like herself, were making an effort to be free.

She stepped back into the room, and the rose-colored silk curtains brushed against her face, as she passed, like a caress. She smoothed her cheek and then, and then buried her face in the huge bunch of American Beauty roses which Mr. Bronson and Sadie had sent to welcome her. And tonight she would be another change, further adventures to look forward to. Life was, after all, not such an impossible affair!

Sadie Bronson, in another room, was undergoing no exotic emotions. She was coolly circulating the chances which had come her way. Nadine Pelham was a mere baby in every respect, not as experienced in worldly knowledge of men and things as an American child of 10. She was obviously not in love with her fiancé. The fiancé was obviously not in love with her; there could be no possible harm in attracting him away from her. What was to be the advantage of the Pelham family interested Sadie not a jot. She knew the whole situation from her father. How the place was entailed, and went with the title. She had millions of her own to replace Nadine's and life with a promising diplomat in the capitals of Europe while they were young, and a great position in England later on, was exactly her affair, and she would be mad to lose the chance of it, since she was 25 years old! And after this decision she went to bed, and slept the sleep of the just, until the morning.

Eustace smoked for an hour. Nadine had wounded his vanity, and the only emotion he was conscious of now towards her was one of resentment. Should he be able to go through with the thing, or would he have to throw it all over in spite of its many advantages?

Sir Edward sat with his head in his hands. What might happen even if marriage to Eustace was safely accomplished? Marriage did not control temperaments or lessen temptations, as he very well knew; and when at last he fell asleep some hours later, it was to have uneasy dreams of Nadine. He retired once more the deep humiliations she had caused him.

Of the whole party Mr. Bronson was the only one who retired to rest in perfect tranquility after he had written out a telegram to the chief mining engineer of the Gold Stamp Mining Corporation to meet the private car at Albuquerque some days hence.

CHAPTER VI. Everything about America pleased Nadine. She liked its newness, and its noise, and its rush, and its life; they drove about New York in the morning and saw as much as they could. The people in the train going to Chicago looked so jolly, and the colored porters and the waiters in the restaurant delighted her. Here nobody would be bothering about etiquette, and everybody was smiling. Even the noisy, badly-behaved children, running up and down the train, did not irritate her. A new animation was entering her being.

Miss Blenkensop disapproved of everything, and watched, from the open door of her drawing-room with infinite dismay, the dark porter arranging the sleeping accommodation for the night!

"I SHOULD HAVE PUT MY EAR-MUFFS ON MY BIG TOE!"

AND THAT'S WHY—

People of both sexes were going to sleep underneath those green curtains. And if one did not happen to have money enough to secure a drawing-room, one would be obliged to expose oneself to all kinds of dangers! Blenkensop felt her maiden cheeks growing crimson, with the sudden thought of how she would ever be able to climb into bed, supposing a man had taken the lower berth! How fortunate that Sir Edward shared her views, and would never grudge the expense to secure the ladies of his party against any such distressing possibilities as could easily occur had they to travel in the general car! She hardly liked the idea of even Augustine running such risks!

Nadine revelled in the new adventure. When they came back from the restaurant to their drawing room, and the usual sight presented itself, of humanity trying to undress as best it could behind bulging green baize, she had the greatest difficulty to control her mirth until they arrived at their compartment, when she shook with laughter.

"Blenkensop, aren't they delicious?" she exclaimed. "Oh, don't you adore being here!"

But Miss Blenkensop closed the door reprovingly.

Next day in Chicago was another pleasure for Nadine. More restaurants, more life, and movement!

"What are they pouring out of those flasks they are taking from their pockets?" she asked Sadie Bronson, looking over to a party of merry young men and maidens.

"Why, just whisky, of course. We have to do that because of prohibition; don't you see, people always want to do what they are told they must not."

"You feel that here?" asked Nadine. "Oh, I feel a new sensation; I want to feel that there is forbidden fruit, not just only forbidden things to drink."

"But you lived there everything you wanted really was forbidden, what would you do?"

"It would be just glorious; there would be something to exist for, in planning to get out!"

This was a new view for Nadine, and it comforted her; but it also made her think. Did she want some particular thing, or was it just freedom to indulge her personality? Or was there really something wonderful in life that both she and Sadie were missing?

When they got on to the private car, her delight was to sit on the observation platform at the end, and watch the country slipping away into perspective. She had a charming little compartment all to herself to sleep in, and when every one was taking a siesta after lunch, in the great hall as they began to get into the desert, she took out the story of Bayard—the book went everywhere with her, even though she had not really read it for several years. No, it was not this Bayard she wanted. Eustace, if he had a nicer character, could be this kind of knight. A man to make her love him must be much more—she hardly knew how to express it—more affectionate, more dashing, more of a master. Would she ever meet such an one? When it was too late? Then Nadine rushed to her compartment for her camera, and after they had drawn up she climbed down from the car at the other door.

Eustace and Sadie were far down the platform by now, buying trinkets of Indian silver. Blenkensop was looking anxiously from the door, having lost sight of her charge.

Eustace was a tiresome player, taking a long time to make up his mind, and even Sadie grew impatient with him; while, if Nadine was his partner, she drummed her fingers on the table. Fortunately she felt the confined conditions of a private car did not make tete-a-tete inevitable. If one wanted that, one would have to arrange it with intelligence, as Sadie did to secure Eustace in the starlight after dinner. Nadine was so absorbed with her own desire not to be with him, that she had not observed Miss Bronson's machinations; but Blenkensop, and had determined now to defeat them. Blenkensop and her eternal knitting never seemed absent from the young people's horizon—only Sadie was more than a match for her, and often saw Eustace alone.

A. A. C. PLAYS BIRMINGHAM A. A. C. AT AUDITORIUM TONIGHT

Slagtown Team Anxious To Whip the Beanboys
Miss. A. & M. Is Tech's Next

To begin a few busy days of basketball for themselves and Atlanta, Joe Dean's Atlanta Athletic clubmen step out against strong opposition on the Auditorium court tonight when they encounter the Birmingham Athletic club. This event, bringing an intenseness of age-old rivalry, will begin at 8:30 o'clock.

Of late the club boys have been going about the business of basketball with a fervor that has brought them back to normal fire and efficiency—nothing daunted by a rather insipid beginning, before the new combination of the Beanmen were tried in the hot fire of competition enough to weld them smoothly.

But since enough of the season has passed to iron out all the kinks, it's a different aggregation and in their last two games with Vandy and "Hama," they have showed the stuff that would make the club a familiar basketball byword in this section and elsewhere.

Rufus Bass and Joe Singleton, Scrappy Sullivan and all the rest are now in a position to call themselves and their organization with great daubs of glory during the last few days of the season. And opportunity aplenty will be given to the club to meet Albany "Y" Georgia, Mississippi A. and M.—all "some pumpkins" in a cage way—some they can close the 1924 season's book of books.

AGGIES TO BRING STRONG TEAM HERE

BY ALBERT PHIPPS.
Determined to play as hosts the championship basketball team of the south, the Mississippi Aggies will make their newest bow to Atlanta on Saturday night, when they meet the Tech Yellow Jackets.

The game promises to test the inherent strength of both teams, as they struggle in a fury of final preparations for the tourney. Moreover, each team is aggravated by recent defeats, which have turned the pride of both the Jackets and Maroons, pointing to them the golden opportunity for a comeback, ripe and ready for the plucking.

The Aggies are vividly remembered as the five who went through last year's tourney without feeling the sting of defeat, but fighting with dogged swiftness to ultimate victory and the southern championship. Those same five men, with but one exception, will meet Tech next Saturday night.

On the other hand we have the Jackets, coming into their own after a mealy of successes and setbacks, but showing better promise than at any other time in the season. Cliff King, the rangy forward who has just returned to the lineup after a month of concentrated studying, has stored up a world of action. In the practices his flashy passing and basketballing have been a recent spasm and he is fairly aching to expend his pent-up enthusiasm in getting around the guarding of Gatecliff.

Eckford, the spry center of the Tech five, will probably be the game for part of the time, but will be reserved by the coach until badly needed because of a recently sprained ankle. No Jacket quintet has shown more of the old pep than did the present varsity in Wednesday's scrimmage with the freshmen. Smooth passing, scintillating exclamation of praise from the onlookers, distinguished its work.

Local Y. M. C. A. Wins Game From Mexico City

BULLDOGS TO MEET N. C. QUINT

Atlanta, Ga., January 31.—(Special.)—The Georgia cagers returned to Athens after their short but pleasant trip to Auburn, where they won from the Plainsmen by the score of 32 to 17. Coach Stegeman gave the men only a short workout this afternoon to allow them to get the kinks out of their system for the game with North Carolina Friday night.

North Carolina has a very strong team and is expected to furnish the strongest opposition to the locals of any home game with the exception of the A. A. C. game.

Coach Thomas, chief mentor of the Freshman team, states that his men will tackle the Tech Hi basketballers prior to the big game of the night. The freshmen have defeated Jack Frost's Monroe Aggies and a local organization of some and in fact, are showing up extremely well for a freshman team. Both games will be played at Moss auditorium.

Mrs. Mallory Can Represent Norway

New York, January 31.—Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, seven times national women's tennis champion, who has been barred from competing for the United States in the Olympics, is eligible to represent Norway, her native land, if she so desires. This question, a subject of uncertainty for several weeks, was settled definitely today in an invitation extended to Mrs. Mallory to compete for Norway.

The invitation, sent by the president of the Norwegian Lawn Tennis association, informed Mrs. Mallory that French Olympic authorities had given official assurances that she is fully qualified to represent her native country, though how an American citizen by marriage, the former titleholder, however, declined to say whether she would accept.

Mrs. Mallory was prevented from representing this country because she competed for Norway in the 1912 Olympics at Stockholm. The Olympic rules provide that no competitor who has ever represented one nation can compete for another land.

Mrs. Mallory is expected to be selected as a member of this country's team which will oppose a British women's team in a series of matches for the title of the Wightman trophy.

Mrs. Mallory was prevented from representing this country because she competed for Norway in the 1912 Olympics at Stockholm. The Olympic rules provide that no competitor who has ever represented one nation can compete for another land.

A PIECE FOR THE PAPER

There's something decidedly worth while, it appears, in the "international friendship tour" being made by the Red Triangles, the basketball team of the Y. M. C. A. in Mexico City, Mexico. Their appearance at the Y. M. C. A. here last night was one of thirty their tour provides in as many cities of the United States—with two more in Havana on the way back home.

Too many headlines and too much revolution has made most Americans latch on to the opinion that every Mexican spends his time stalking the tamale to its lair before breakfast; returning to spend an hour getting his hat out of shape, grease his rifle, shoot several innocent bystanders, gargle a couple of slugs of tequila, dodge jumping beans, ride burros and tell the wife he wants another bowl of chili.

A view of this group of young athletes in action gives a new insight into the southwesterly neighbor nation of ours. And the new opinion is clearly expressed in the printed outline of the trip the Mexican Y. M. C. A. gives.

"The International Friendship Tour," says a brochure given out at the game, "is being made with definite objects in mind. These boys will not win all their games. We hope they will win some of them. There is one thing, however, that we feel absolutely sure they will win, and that is the friendship of everybody they meet. These boys are about the same sort that boys are everywhere. One of the big objects of this trip is to demonstrate just exactly that. They are no better and no worse than the boys in Brazil or England or China or the United States. They are just boys."

And, although they obviously haven't had the perpetual contact with basketball that the Americans have had, they are not a bad basketball team—and handle a ball as if they were to the manner born. If it's possible to be born to that sort of manner.

They had a distinct syllabic advantage over the local gang. Which brings up the question—why are foreign languages funny? Why should the office boy laugh when he sees a flat of substitutions like Racomotes for Ramirez, Martinez for Hernandez, Garza for Arechiga? Wonder if other nations could get the same kick out of an American line-up—Jenkins, Johnson, Simpson, Wilkinson, Buford.

COMISKEY TAKES STAND IN JOE JACKSON'S CASE
Milwaukee, Wis., January 31.—Charles A. Comiskey, president of the Chicago club of the American league, took the witness stand today in the suit against this club brought by Joe Jackson for $18,500. Mr. Comiskey testified that he did not know that anything "crooked" had been done by his players during the 1919 world's series, and detailed his first knowledge of the alleged throwing of the series.

"Had I known that Joe Jackson played a crooked game that year, Harry Grabner would not have gone to his home in Georgia next year with a contract," Mr. Comiskey said.

He testified that the first intimation he had that the series was not a right game when a man named Tennis called him early one morning and wanted to talk to him at once about "your baseball club."

COACH MORAN IS UNIQUE FIGURE

BY WALTER CAMP.
New York, January 31.—Charles Moran, who has been released from the five year coaching contract at Centre college to take the job of coaching Bucknell's football team, is a unique figure in college coaching ranks.

He was a big league umpire. Some seven years ago his son, Tom, was playing on the Centre college football team. Long a student of football Moran left his farm to help Coach Myers train Tom and the other players.

The next year he coached the team regularly at a salary said to have been $200 for the season. In 1919 he continued at $500. That was the year that Centre defeated West Virginia after the Mountaineers had snuffed Princeton under 25 to 0.

In 1920, Moran's salary was raised to $700. Then came all the big jumps in football coaches' pay, and Moran was offered places by several southern colleges. He elected to remain at Centre for $5,500.

With all this record of faithfulness behind him, there wasn't much that President Montgomery, of Centre, could do but send him on with blessings when Moran asked for a release from his contract so that he could go to Bucknell.

They evidently find time for something more beneficial than dodging bullets and measuring the distances jumped by jumping beans down Mexico way—as evidenced by the smooth exhibition of basketball offered by the Red Triangles of Mexico City as they went gracefully down in defeat before the Atlanta "Y" team at the Centre Y. M. C. A. last night.

The final score was 23 to 14, due chiefly to the marvelous getaway staged by Buford, Atlanta guard, in the last half. The first half ended with the visitors from the southwest country leading by the score of 7 to 6—just the point after touchdown separating them. But Buford and his team-mates waxed vicious in the closing moments and outscored their guests considerably, despite the difficulties they encountered in ending the speedy and doggedly determined defense offered by the Mexicans.

For Mexico City, Amaro, a swarthy, stocky youth, scintillated especially. Although he garnered only four of his aggregation's points, he was all over the floor all the time and a most important element in the miraculous, at times, passing exhibited by the tourists. In the first half, the lads from the land of Obregon et al.

bewildered the locals by their uncanon handling of the ball. Although the guarding of the Atlanta "Y" team was adhesive and circumspect enough to hold down the scoring, the Latinos had possession of the ball practically continually, and were tossing it back and forth, dribbling it, bounding it, catching it, flipping it almost at will over, under and around the efforts of the "Y."

Replete with fouls, because of the wary eye of E. G. Ellsworth, a very efficient referee, the contest was bitterly waged—the misplays being all resultant from unbounded enthusiasm, for no vestige of anything other than straightforward and clean-cut playing was visible.

Wilkinson and Law shared honors with Buford for the Atlanta five, and Garza, a guard, was abundantly valuable to the Mexican citizens.

The most substantial rise that Austria's stock has experienced was due to the beautiful grace of Berger and Mme. Engelmang, the Austrian figure skaters, who won the competition. The Finnish pair, Jacobson and Mme. Jacobson, were second and France took third place, thanks to Brunet and Mile Joly.

The American ski-jumping team, which held aloof from the ski marathons Wednesday in order to save themselves for the jumping, which is their forte, may never appear at all in the Olympic games of 1924. Unless there is a new fall of snow to the mountains and enable the holding of the jumps. This was done a short time ago in the preliminary practice of the early arrivals.

BIG BREAKS SEEN IN CUPID MARKET

N. Y. Stock Transactions
BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York, January 31.—Ten point breaks in the Liggett and Myers Tobacco issues, following the announcement of a new stock offering, and Buckeye Pipe in belated reflection of a cut in the dividend featured today's highly irregular curb market. Liggett and Myers issues closed near the bottom, but Buckeye

Strength of Magnolia Petroleum up 2 1-2, was due in part to the material increase in the value of its oil in storage by recent increases in crude prices. Prairie Oil and Gas, Vacuum and Imperial of Canada also were strong, but the pipe line shares lost ground in sympathy with the break in Buckeye.

Dubilier Radio improved slightly on the announcement of record-breaking production and earnings. National Dairy Products jumped more than 2 points in heavy trading. Durants Motors moved up more than 2 points in sympathy with the strength shown by the stock group on the "big board." Glen Alden Coal dropped one. Other changes in the industrial group were generally small and unimportant.

Yeggmen Foiled In Macon Arrest, Officers Believe

Macon, Ga., January 31.—(Special.)—An alleged conspiracy to crack a number of safes in middle Georgia is believed by officers to have been thwarted here today with the arrest of Jack Lynch, former convict.

Lynch's alleged pal in the undertaking was to have been Dick Jester, captured here last night, and returned to Sumter county gang today, it is believed.

Three weeks ago Lynch completed his sentence of 10 years on the Bibb county farm, having been sent up on a charge of safe blowing.

The same night that he left the chain gang, there was a burglary at that institution and a quantity of explosives were taken. Coming to Macon, Lynch secured work on the new boys' high school.

In the bottom of a trunk in his room at a south Macon boarding house today detectives found 16 sticks of dynamite. Lynch is alleged to have later admitted that he stole the explosives from the county.

Felonious possession of explosives and larceny will be booked against him, officers state.

The electric light will be manufactured by the Georgia-Alabama Power company of Albany and is now being shipped to Albany, Americus, Cordele, Tifton, Sylvester and Valdosta.

Alleged Bootlegger Captures Officer In Spaulding Raid

Griffin, Ga., January 31.—(Special.)—Perry Brown, Spaulding county policeman, is alleged to have been kidnapped by bootleggers when they raided a liquor caravan here late Wednesday night. The man was taken to Campbell's woods, a point just outside of Hampton, and dropped, he said.

Two Packard automobiles and about 50 gallons of liquor are reported to have been taken in the raid.

Street Car Tax $17,346.31 More Than Last Year

A check for $125,065.55 was paid to the city of Atlanta Thursday by the Georgia Railway & Power company as balance due on the $187,410.07 gross receipt tax for 1923. This is an increase for the year of $17,346.31.

In addition to other taxes, the Georgia Railway & Power company pays the city annually 2 per cent of the gross income of the street railways, electric and steam heat departments in the seven mile zone of the city. The tax becomes 3 per cent in 1925.

Gross income for 1923 was $9,370.75. Franchise tax, sanitary tax and licenses amounting to $81,446.49 were deducted from this, leaving a balance to be paid of $125,065.55.

Net earnings of the Atlanta Gas Light company for the month of December were $19,463.17 according to regular monthly report filed Thursday with the state public service commission.

Total revenues for the month were $19,587.67, while expenses were $150,124.50.

The report in detail is as follows:

Receipts:

From sale of gas$197,099.92
From other sources1,617.75
Total$198,717.67

Expenses:

Production$9,105.32
Transmission and distribution15,262.77
Commercial12,576.71
New business5,983.31
General and miscellaneous16,485.46
Depreciation10,642.97
Total$70,124.50

A compilation of the annual report of the street railway department of the Georgia Railway and Power company, made Thursday, showed that a total of 75,194,880 pay passengers were carried in 1923, exclusive of the Stone Mountain and Marietta interurban lines. For the same period there were 18,838,406 transfer passengers.

The average cash fare per passenger was 6.53 cents; the total revenue being given at $5,139,134.53.

Assuming that the same number of transfers would be used if the proposed charge of 2 cents per transfer is made, this would have yielded $296,708.12 additional revenue, while, likewise assuming that 10 per cent of the passengers would pay cash fares instead of using tickets if the cash fare was raised to 10 cents, the revenue would have increased from this source by $225,584.67, it was stated.
